

Management for hire

Management resources may not always be available in the organisation, either temporarily or permanently for strategic reasons. Lack of such resources creates a vacuum in the organisation and has a negative effect on the activity and the progress of the business.

Teleplan has participated in the implementation and the operation of small and large scale telecommunication/IT operations on all continents. We have gained international management experience and we have attracted international management capacities. Such capacity is available to our clients in the telecom/IT industry, either as project management or line management.

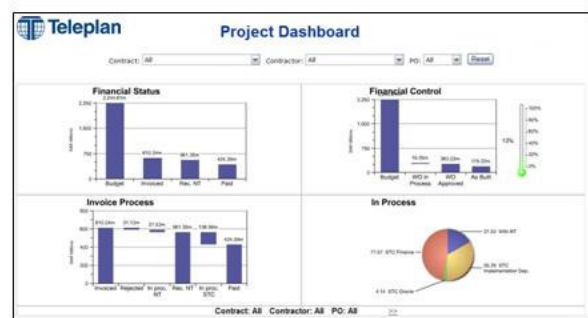

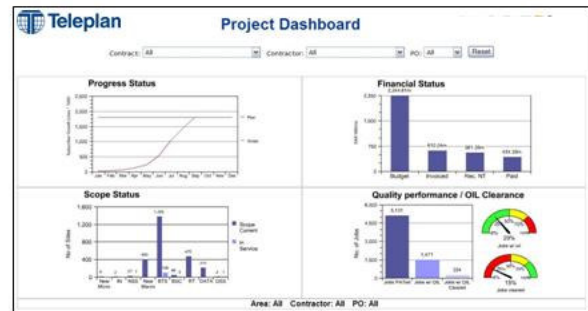

Services

Teleplan aims at providing all the competence and expertise required by a telecom/IT service provider/operator. This includes providing management expertise such as:

- Project and roll-out managers
- Technical directors and CTOs
- Billing managers
- Contract and sourcing managers
- Security and quality officers.

Teleplan also provides relevant administrative personnel such as project administrators/ - coordinators, accountants and assistants.

Our management competence is gained through implementation and operational experience from international telecommunication/IT projects of all sizes. Our international footprint has also attracted experienced managers who are available to our clients through Teleplans partner network.

Tools and methods

The human capital and qualities of our consultants are our most valuable management tools. These are however complemented with:

- Project management tools
- Project management document templates (e.g. project specifications, progress reports, work descriptions)
- Framework for risk and vulnerability analysis
- Project management certification programs (by the Project Management Institute, www.pmi.org).

Our managers also have priority access to and are supported by all the competence available within Teleplans organisation, whether technological, commercial, or organisational expertise be required.

Assignment models

Depending on the client's requirements, Teleplan may either provide management resources on a temporary basis - e.g. during an initial business set-up, or when the company's own managers are e.g. on leave - or on a more semi-permanent basis.

Reasons for using Teleplan

- Decades of proven international experience
- In-depth industry experience
- Proven tools and methodology
- Priority access to a multi-competent resource base
- Quality, reliability and flexibility.
